Quartex™ . . .

by Pavestone®

. . . granite strength and beauty at a fraction of the price.

Pavestone Co. presents a new, unique granite-face paving product called Quartex™ that combines the durability and versatility of concrete pavers and the natural beauty and color of quarried granite.

A layer of surface aggregate made from crushed granite, quartz, or obsidian is bonded to the Quartex™ paver with more than 20,000 pounds of pressure.

Design options and color combinations are virtually unlimited, with colors such as rose, marble, evergreen, fern, obsidian, and dusty, and a variety of shapes and sizes.

Quartex™ Pavestones are ideal for most light duty commercial or residential applications such as plazas, walkways, patios, medians, or pedestrian malls.

Instead of expensive, cut granite stones or cheap imitations, Quartex™ Pavestones provide a granite look with a concrete price.

TEXAS ARCHITECT (ISSN: 0040-4179) is published seven times per year (bimonthly and in April) by the Texas Society of Architects, 114 West Seventh, Suite 1400, Austin, Texas 78701 (David Lancaster, Executive Vice President). TSA is a regional component of the American Institute of Architects, 1735 New York Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20006, 202/626-7300. Copyright 1992 by the Texas Society of Architects

The TEXAS ARCHITECT Practice Annual is intended to be an everyday guide to Society affairs. Herein are such basics as the directories of firms and members, supplemented by the TSA Bylaws and rosters of the Society's officers, staff, commissions, and committees. Also included is information about TSA's various sister organizations, such as the Texas Architectural Foundation and the Texas Architects Committee. It is hoped that the Practice Annual will facilitate participation by Texas architects in the affairs of their professional organization. Although every effort is made to avoid them, errors in a publication of this sort—which relies on information from a wide range of sources—are virtually inevitable. Please report any inaccuracies to the TSA office so that they can be corrected in the next edition. Directories reflect TSA records through January 15, 1992.

We design Professional Liability Insurance as carefully as you design projects.

If you're a design professional, you have very specific insurance needs. That's where we have an edge. With over 20 years experience we are the major provider of professional liability insurance coverage for architects and engineers in Texas.

As specialists in your field, we are able to assist you in evaluating the risks associated with your practice and because we have access to the major carriers providing insurance to design professionals, we can match you up with a carrier that can deliver the right coverage.

We can also work with you on loss prevention to minimize your risks and exposure through on-going seminars, study programs, bulletins, and reviews of hold harmless and indemnity clauses.

Then we back you up at claim time. We counsel you when the loss is reported, maintain detailed records, and then assist you as needed in dealing with your insurance company and defense attorney.

The bottom line of all this is that when you take advantage of our experience, you can get the professional liability insurance coverage that meets your needs at a price that's very hard to beat.

Updating Lists, Survey

THIS YEAR we continue the tradition of the Texas Architect Practice Annual, formerly the TSA Handbook. As in previous years, the Practice Annual contains all the information that has made it and the Handbook indispensable. There are complete listings of TSA's officers, staff, and committees, and of the officers of the state's 17 chapters. There are also the TSA Bylaws, guidelines for committees, and information on the procedures and activities of such related organizations as the Texas Architects Foundation, the Texas Architects Committee, TSA Disaster Action, the Insurance Benefit Trust, and the state's accredited schools of architecture. Government affairs are represented by listings for federal and state officials (including State Senators and Representatives and the heads of state agencies of interest to architects).

The Practice Annual also features the Guide to Professionals and Guide to Services and Products, starting on page 91. The companies listed there, along with the advertisers found throughout, support publication of the magazine, and we urge TA readers to think of them when specifying products and services.

The most-used part of the Practice Annual will probably continue to be the directories, with TSA's firms (starting on page 49) and membership (starting on page 67) listed for each chapter and indexed (firms by chapter, starting on page 45; members by chapter, starting on page 57).

Starting on page 42, we present the results of a survey of TSA's membership, conducted in 1991 by distributing a two-page questionnaire through the TSA Report. TSA General Manager Ray Don Tilley compiled the results, and presents his analysis on page 42. In all, 281 people answered the questionnaire, an excellent response for a survey of this kind. The breakout on page 42 shows demographic information about the respondents, including data on their ages, sex, firm compositions, and incomes.

The survey asks respondents to rate (on a scale from zero to four) the priorities of 14 different TSA programs, from legislative activities to the intern-development program, and then to rate what the respondents perceive to be the actual performance of those programs. The public image of architecture is also rated, along with the different professional organizations for influencing that image. Special sections in the survey are devoted to two of the major efforts of the TSA staff: the TSA Annual Meeting and Texas Architect. Finally, there is a section on CAD use by architects, sampling how many respondents use CAD and how many plan to purchase CAD equipment in the coming year.

The survey results show that, of 281 respondents, 98 percent read Texas Architect regularly (up two percent from last year). They rate TAs priority third among TSA's programs, after legislative and political activities and tied with continuing education and intern development, putting the magazine ahead of such programs as the honors and graphics awards and even insurance benefits. With a performance rating of 3.2 (unchanged since last year), Texas Architect edges out legislative activities for a second year to take the top performance rating among TSA programs. Indeed, only TA scored over 3.0 in the performance ratings, and the Practice Annual tied with legislative affairs for second.

The number of respondents who spend an hour or more with each issue doubled from last year (from five to ten percent), while the usage of the magazine increased, as shown by the number of times respondents said they referred back to TA issues. The survey also shows where we should focus on improvement: helping to improve the public image of the profession. This information will guide our plans for the next year and beyond.

OUR WINDOWS ARE ONE OF A KIND, EVERY TIME.

Rylander Residence, Houston

At Marvin, our recipe for making windows isn't like everyone else's. We make them one at a time. To your exact specifications for size, shape, style and features. So don't think you have to settle for an off-the-shelf window for your one-of-a-kind needs. Tell us what you want, and we'll cook something up for you. Just ask Houston architect Leslie Barry Davidson, AIA:

"Our primary reason for specifying Marvin Windows is the flexibility of their made-to-order concept. This allows us to design the size and shape that looks best in whatever project we are doing.

"Another major factor is the service provided by Marvin's architectural department and the local distributor."

I Liked Neighborhood Terrorism Until The Day Of The Masonry Hut!

“It’s not all it’s cracked up to be, being the wolf. Automatic Bad Guy, you know? But I’ve accepted myself and my impulses, my hungers if you will, and Dr. Ziebeck says I’m adjusting nicely.

Then along comes that smart aleck third pig and his modern masonry construction.

Talk about frustration! I mean, I’m known as a huffer and puffer, right? Don’t mean to brag, but I can get some wicked velocity on my Sunday Huff.

Well, I wound up and gave it a solid Huff and slipped in a Number 3 Puff and that pig’s hut didn’t give a wiggle. Not a quiver. I thought I heard—I know I heard—them laughing in there.

Well. You can imagine what that did to me. I’ve tried to come to grips with it, make it my reality, you know, but still it was a failure.

Masonry construction and union labor are too tough, too much. There, I’ve said it and I’m glad. Huts aren’t supposed to be that strong, you know?”

How the TSA Insurance Program does

Most insurance programs can't pass the test of time. They fail when it takes weeks and months to handle your claim. They fail when they treat you like a number with a problem.

The TSA (Texas Society of Architects) Insurance Program, however, passes the test of time with flying colors. Among the program's features:

- 48 hour average claims turnaround time
- A courteous and caring staff that treats you like a person, not a number
- Choice of three deductible options
- Office hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. central time
- Controlled by active AIA members as Trustees

It's your time and your money. If your insurance program isn't giving you the service you pay for, it's time to look into the TSA Group Insurance Program.

A/E/C SYSTEMS® '92

The world's largest computer and management show for the design and construction industry
Conference June 8-11 ■ Exhibit June 9-11 ■ Dallas, Texas USA

Create better projects, maximize productivity, and sharpen your management effectiveness.

See, touch and compare the hottest hardware, software, peripherals and supplies for every application at the annual event where design and construction professionals make their best computer connections.

Connect with the best computer minds at conferences that teach you how to find better solutions to clients' problems ... design & build quality facilities at lower cost ... operate the built environment more efficiently.

A/E/C SYSTEMS '92 is the technology connection for today's computer-sophisticated architects, engineers, contractors, facilities managers, GIS professionals, and others in the design and construction industry. The comprehensive exposition is actually a host of related exhibits of interest to the entire project team, happening simultaneously.

In application areas, special-interest users can zero in on products primarily for design, construction, computer-assisted specifying, facilities management, reprographics, or GIS, while neighborhoods sponsored by Autodesk and Intergraph display linkable systems from many developers in a one-stop shopping environment.

Each exhibit stands alone, but all relate closely, and attendees have full crossover privileges to every area of the show. If you want to see it, it will be at A/E/C SYSTEMS '92.

Looking at the latest technology is good, but learning how to use it for maximum benefit to your firm and your clients is even better. That's what the 1992 conference program is all about.

More than 100 sessions ranging in length from 60 minutes to 3 days are scheduled between June 8 and 11 including:

- Managing Your Architectural CADD System
- Computers in Architectural Design & Modeling
- Computer-integrated Design: The Real Payoff

Our conferences don't waste your time with circuit lecturers or vendor pitches. Get it straight from fellow users at A/E/C SYSTEMS '92 ... where design and construction professionals make the best computer connections.

TSA Committee Guidelines

A. General

1. Read TSA Bylaws in Texas Architect Practice Annual concerning committees.
2. Read Texas Architect Practice Annual to become familiar with other committees that might overlap or share common interests.
3. Be careful in dealing with the public or media: leave this to the President and Executive Vice President. Report any requests for information outside of membership.

B. Committee Structure

1. Chairman should select committees (suggested average size five to eight members) from those who have an interest and are willing to serve on the committee. TSA may assign additional members.
2. Chairman should recommend members with the following qualifications, as well as others, in mind:
 - (a) expertise in committee subject; (b) geographical representation on committee where possible; (c) variation in size and types of firms, as well as other factors; (d) involvement of at least one member who has not participated in a TSA committee before; (e) involvement of one associate member, if possible; (f) recommend members with a desire toward continuity, i.e. select some with a two-year commitment; also appoint a Vice Chairman (with advice and consent of Commissioner) as a possible Chairman for succeeding year. This appointment could be made three or four months into the committee year; (g) consider enthusiasm and interest along with experience as a criterion for selection; (h) local chapter chairs of comparable committees are encouraged to be members; (i) if a member does not participate on a regular basis, the member should be removed by the Chair, by letter with copy to Commissioner;

C. Resources

1. TSA staff on request will:
 - (a) assign a staff person to each committee as a contact and resource to the TSA office; (b) help identify reports, other committee activities, etc., that might have an impact on committee efforts; (c) help identify prospective committee members; (d) help identify TSA members with special qualifications or resources that might be helpful to committee effort.
2. American Institute of Architects
 - (a) Chair should communicate with Chairs of parallel national committees to take advantage of efforts on national level; (b) Chair or vice-chair are encouraged to be members of corresponding national committees; (c) through National AIA Directors, TSA staff, etc., Chair should determine if any local chapters have efforts that have parallel interests.

D. Goals

1. During the first committee meeting, the function of the committee should be discussed in detail.
2. The committee should next identify and establish goals. In setting these goals, the committee should bear in mind that: (a) stating the goal in positive language that uses strong, active verbs reduces the opportunity for misunderstanding; (b) articulating the objectives and recognizing changes and events within the overall plan enable the committee to pinpoint tangible progress en route to the desired goal(s); (c) setting realistic goals (with results that are tangible and visible) is preferable to setting abstract goals (whose purposes are ambiguous and vague) because realistic goals encourage success; (d) defining goals clearly will lead to perceptible results that are easier to evaluate.

E. Reporting/Communication

1. Report quarterly to TSA concerning activities of committees along with any requested action of the TSA Board of Directors. Reports are to be made, on the form sent to you each quarter, at least 14 days prior to TSA board meeting.
2. Communication of committee efforts to members is extremely important. Discuss any efforts potentially of interest to membership with staff contact or commissioner.

Go Native, Texan!

Mesquite: Real Texan

You just can't get more Texan than Mesquite when you're talking about fine wood. The most stable, the most beautiful and the hardest wood that Texas produces. It beats every other wood, domestic or foreign, for workability and finish, too. Tough . . . Elegant . . . Resilient . . . Full of obvious character . . . Very much like the character that Texas has produced in her people! Mesquite, a real wood for real Texans.

that the reason for forming an organization such as TSA is to share information about mutual professional interests.

F. Budgeting

1. Chairmen must have their budget requests submitted to their respective Commissioners no later than July 1 in the year preceding their committee year. Requests for funds should be in a letter and should include: (a) a description of the activity/project; (b) specific goal(s)/need(s) that would be met; (c) anticipated benefits to the general membership and/or public; (d) the month(s) during which the requested funds would be expended.

2. TSA funds are not available to reimburse committee chairmen for time, travel, or out-of-pocket expenses (including office, telephone, postage, stationery) associated with committee activities. However, upon request, the TSA office will assist in disseminating information to and in corresponding with committee members and others relative to committee meetings, activities, and functions.

G. Scheduling

1. Committees should begin immediately after appointment and the Chairman should work toward achieving goals by third quarter. (Historically, the most productive work is performed in the first part of the year.)

2. Meetings should be held at least four times during the year or as appropriate for tasks (goals) selected.

3. Meetings should be scheduled to allow all committee members to attend without undue penalty for geographical location. Suggest TSA headquarters conference room (Austin) and TSA board meetings (usually in a hotel with meeting rooms available). These rooms must be requested through TSA for scheduling.

H. Task Forces

The above guidelines apply to committees, but would apply to Task Forces with certain appropriate modifications.

Charter and History

The Texas Architectural Foundation (TAF) was established on June 4, 1952, based upon the application presented by the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Texas Society of Architects and the issuance of an official Charter by the Secretary of State of Texas for a period of 30 years.

Since 1952, through the generosity of many individuals, corporations, and interested groups in and out of the profession, the Texas Architectural Foundation has enjoyed a slow and steady growth in its financial position and has been successfully fulfilling its purposes. However, the opportunities to fulfill the potential and to meet the need for service in architectural education are still far beyond the capabilities of the Foundation to achieve, and it is hoped that continuing and expanding interest of the architectural profession and its friends in Texas will assist the Foundation financially in a continually increasing manner toward the accomplishment of its goals.

Constitution and Bylaws

Article I. Name

The name of this organization shall be the Texas Architectural Foundation, hereinafter referred to as the Foundation, a non-profit corporation.

Article II. Purpose

The purpose of this Foundation is to provide for the support of architectural education in Texas through financial aid, grants, and scholarships to selected schools, programs, and students; and to receive, manage, expend, and sell property or funds to carry out this purpose.

Article VI. Trustees

The Trustees of the Foundation shall serve as the Executive Committee, and shall have full power and authority to manage, control, invest, re-invest, and expend the assets of the Foundation in any manner determined necessary or desirable under the purpose and regulation of the Foundation.

Funding

The long-established goal to obtain a minimum capital asset value of $100,000 prior to the provision of scholarships and grants from other than income earned from capital assets was attained in 1973, and we can be very proud of this accomplishment. However, as our profession grows in this state, the need also increases for educational assistance from the Foundation. Therefore, the Trustees annually rededicate themselves to continuing expansion of our base endowment fund while also enlarging the program of activities to which the goals of the Foundation are committed.

The Foundation suggests and encourages the following methods as vehicles for the expansion of its assets:

1. Memorial gifts to the Foundation from architects and interested individuals, groups, or corporations in memory of deceased friends, or in commemoration of outstanding events or persons. Such memorial gifts are permanently recorded in the records of the Texas Architectural Foundation and appropriately worded notification of such memorial or commemorative gifts is forwarded by the Foundation to families of those so honored.

2. By bequest in the wills of architects and other interested persons.

3. By regular contributions from architects, AIA Chapters, and interested persons and organizations.

4. By specific grants and gifts from businesses, industry, and interested foundations.

5. In addition to the above, a number of special gifts and grants from individuals, corporations, and foundations are regularly accepted and administered by the Texas Architectural Foundation according to the wishes or detailed instructions that are dictated by the donors. While the Foundation encourages such gifts and grants, and is quite happy to administer them when, in the opinion of the Trustees of the Foundation, they benefit architectural education and research, it also requests additional funding by the donors to cover the costs of administration and for additions to the Foundation's principal fund of assets.

Gifts and grants to the Texas Architectural Foundation have been approved by the Internal Revenue Service as non-taxable donations when calculating personal or corporate income tax. The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that non-profit foundations may properly make gifts to the Texas Architectural Foundation.

TSA DISASTER ACTION, INC.

The following information is adapted from Administrative and Operations Guide for TSA Disaster Action, Inc. (revised May 1, 1980).

TSA DISASTER ACTION, INC., is a nonprofit corporation formed in July 1971. It was created as a wholly owned subsidiary of the Texas Society of Architects (TSA), to provide a tax-free mechanism through which the design professions and other allied groups could respond quickly and effectively to the restoration needs of the people of any community in Texas when their living and working shelters are ravaged by a disaster. The idea was conceived by members of TSA as a result of the growing concern that disaster restoration should be more effective and should improve living conditions over those that existed prior to the disaster.

There are two general categories of disasters: those that result from natural causes, such as storms, and those caused by the carelessness and indifference of humans, such as pollution.

Administration

The unusual nature of TSA Disaster Action, Inc., necessitates good administration and efficient operations. Disasters of the type and magnitude that the Corporation is intended to respond to occur in Texas approximately every three years. This implies that the mechanics of the Corporation will be dormant most of the time; for this reason every participant, president, or volunteer must be familiar with its structure and operational procedures.

Organization

The organization was structured for simple operations and administration.

The Corporation's Board of Directors is made up of the members of the TSA Executive Committee; terms run concurrently with Executive Committee terms and their election is automatic on the first of each calendar year. This structure accomplishes several things: 1) ensuring the continuity of the intent and policies of the Corporation; 2) eliminating the need for separate elections; 3) simplifying procedures; and, 4) allowing the routine business matters of the Corporation to be handled at regular TSA Executive Committee meetings.

The Disaster Action Committee is appointed by the TSA President each year. Committee members are selected from the TSA membership, drawing on those with disaster-recovery experience or training. The Committee currently consists of a chairman and eight members.

Liaison on the Disaster Action Committee consists of a member from each AIA chapter in the region, appointed each year by the chapter presidents. The liaison appointee should be interested in Disaster Action activities and should be in a position to encourage members of the chapter and of other professions in the community to volunteer for service.

The Disaster Action Team is composed entirely of volunteers who can disengage themselves from their normal responsibilities to serve on the team in a disaster area. Members are principally drawn from the design professions, but teams may include others who can assist the Corporation in its commitment to providing professional guidance to the victims in a disaster area. Architecture students have served very effectively in the past and should always be considered as potential team members, but only with the approval of academic authorities.

Corporation Office

The Corporation Office is the control center for all state-level administrative and operations matters. It is located in the same quarters as TSA. The address is: 114 West 7th, Suite 1400, Austin 78701, 512/478-7386.

Functions

The Corporation Bylaws, quoted in part as follows, define the general functions of the Board of Directors. They are: Establishing managerial and operational policies and procedures for the Corporation and basic organizational and procedural guidelines for the volunteer disaster-action team; Attending the Annual Meeting and any specially called meetings; Preparing and approving the Corporation's annual report; Promoting and accepting donations to the Corporation; Complying with the requirements of the Texas nonprofit-corporation law; Submitting the report required by the Internal Revenue Service annually or as required; Advising the President or Secretary regarding the commitment of Corporation resources in a Disaster Action operation; Advising and assisting in the establishment of a long-term rehabilitation operation (CDC type) when it is the extension of a Disaster Action operation; Controlling the use and revisions of the Administration and Operations Guide; Approving and paying administrative and operations expenses; and Promoting the interest and enthusiasm of the TSA membership in the Corporation's purposes and activities.

The Disaster Action Committee will be responsible to the Board of Directors of the Corporation for performing the following functions: Acting as a continuing research-and-study resource for the administration, operations, and funding of the Corporation; Establishing and updating each year a "Roster of Disaster Action Volunteers," from which team members, including team leaders, can be drawn; Communicate with the committee's liaison representative in each chapter for the promotion of interest in Disaster Action work and for the solicitation of candidates for the "Roster of Disaster Action Volunteers"; and Assisting in selecting a Disaster Action team if requested by the Corporation.

Individual members of the committee, when available and when requested by the Corporation office, will respond to the following tasks on short notice: Visit a disaster area and to provide the Corporation office with an appraisal of the situation when the information cannot be obtained otherwise; Serve as Disaster Action team leader; and Spend a day or two in the disaster area assisting another team leader in setting up a Disaster Action operation;

The Disaster Action Team members will perform such functions as follows: Contacting team leaders as soon as they arrive in the disaster area; Assisting in setting up the operations office

The service organization responsible for maintaining TSA's group life, major medical, and disability insurance programs, and for processing all claims is Association Administrators and Consultants, Inc., 19000 MacArthur Blvd., Suite 500, Irvine, Calif., 92715, telephone 800/854-0491.

Benefits

The benefits provided through the TSA Insurance Benefit Trust include a basic plan consisting of group life, accidental-death-and-dismemberment (AD&D), and major-medical coverages, and additional optional plans providing for increased life/AD&D insurance, dependent-life insurance, short-term-disability coverage, business-related-accident insurance, and dental/orthodontia benefits.

The basic plan provides a $20,000 death benefit for participants under age 65, with a 35-percent reduction in death benefits for those 65 and older. The major-medical coverage under the basic plan (dependent-medical coverage is optional) provides unlimited benefits, except for mental illness, alcoholism, and drug abuse, and a choice of either a $250, $500, or $1,000 deductible per person per calendar year. The plan pays 80 percent of the first $7,500 of eligible expenses and 100 percent of eligible expenses above $7,500 for any one person in any one calendar year.

Eligibility

All architectural firms in which at least one principal, partner, owner, or officer is a regular member of TSA are eligible to participate. Eligible employees include full-time, permanent employees who work at least 30 hours per week. Each eligible employee may ensure eligible dependents for life and medical coverage, as well as dental/orthodontia benefits if they are made available by the employer. For firms of one to four employees, all must apply for enrollment and the firm must pay 100 percent of employee costs for the basic plan. For firms of five to seven employees, 75 percent must enroll and the firm must pay at least 25 percent of the employee costs for the basic plan. The employer contribution and employee participation requirements differ for the optional plans.

Services

Trustees of the TSA Insurance Benefit Trust continually review the plan for participants, to ensure that the benefits meet high standards and to assure a maximum return on participants' contributions to the program. The Trustees heartily endorse the present service package and point out the following features:

- 48-hour claim service: Most medical claims are approved and processed within 48 hours of receipt. If additional information is necessary to process a claim, participants will be advised of the reason for the delay.

- Toll-free information access: Call 800/854-0491 for immediate answers to insurance-related questions.

- Personalized hospital identification cards: These cards guarantee hospital benefits for up to two days of hospital care. In addition, they will facilitate admittance, and, in many cases, they will serve in lieu of a cash deposit.

- Informational literature: The service organization will provide employee booklets that explain benefits in simple language, enabling a participating firm to comply with ERISA requirements but without having its own "Summary Plan Description." In addition, personalized insurance certificates provide a more detailed description of employee benefits. Each participating firm also receives an administration package, including a detailed administration manual describing day-to-day procedures and a supply of self-addressed envelopes and claim forms.

- Simplified billings: The billing statements forwarded to participating firms are easy to understand and review. Each employee is listed by name, and the contributions due that employee are separated by benefit and totaled for simple, quick examination.

- Custom-designed plans are available to firms with 100 or more employees, with rates based on their own claims experience.

Group Workers' Compensation Plan

The TSA Insurance Trustees also endorse a Group Workers' Compensation Plan available through its Design Professionals Safety Association (DPSA). The rates and benefits for this coverage, when provided through an insurance company, are set by state law.

Normally there is no way for a small firm to get a return on its premiums, even when belonging to most group plans. Consequently the TSA-endorsed DPSA Plan was set up so any surplus premiums left over at the end of each policy year (after claims and administrative expenses are paid) would be returned to all participating firms, regardless of their size. Since being established in 1982, this plan has returned to participating TSA firms an annual dividend averaging 32 percent.

Arbitration and Mediation In Architecture

IF YOU DON'T WANT TO WAIT two or three years and spend thousands of dollars to resolve your next dispute, you should consider the benefits of arbitration and mediation. Arbitration and mediation can save time and money for those in disputes, and they can be accomplished through a major national organization, the American Arbitration Association (AAA). A private not-for-profit organization now in its 66th year, the AAA provides education and training programs and works closely with AIA and other organizations that constitute the National Construction Dispute Resolution Committee (CIAR). In 1991, the AAA administered over 61,000 cases nationwide. According to the latest figures presented to the Committee, in 94 percent of the construction cases filed where claims were between $1-$500,000, the average time from filing to award was 254 days.

Arbitrations are generally much faster, and thus cheaper, than judicial proceedings for several reasons. Arbitration hearings can usually be scheduled more expeditiously than court trials. Furthermore, evidence may be introduced faster and generally without the usual objections found in a judicial proceeding. Perhaps the most important time and cost-saving factor in arbitration stems from the background of arbitrators selected to hear cases. Under AAA/CIAR rules, parties to a dispute may choose arbitrators who have specific expertise in areas related to the dispute, thus reducing the need for expert witnesses to educate a judge or jury. In addition, arbitration is usually final, and can only rarely be appealed. This alone can save a tremendous amount of time and money.

For over 100 years most AIA contract forms have provided for arbitrating disputes. Virtually any type of construction-industry dispute—those involving payment of architectural fees, for example—may be covered, depending on the arbitration provisions. In addition, disputes between contractors and owners, or contractors and subcontractors, may also be covered.

Pursuant to AIA Document A201, the architect customarily is the first "judge" of a dispute that occurs on a construction project. If a party wishes to appeal the architect's decision, the dispute may be referred, within a specific time period, to arbitration, under AAA/CIAR provisions. The rules, available free from any of the AAA's 35 U.S. offices including those in Dallas and Houston, provide for every procedural aspect of an arbitration. They cover how a matter is to be initiated, what the fees are, the qualifications of the arbitrators, how a claim may be changed, methods of expediting the case, hearing procedures, on-site inspections, questions dealing with locale, and time limits for the rendition of the award. Because of the multifaceted role of the architect, it is most important to be familiar with the contents of these rules.

Parties who provide for arbitration of future disputes under the CIAR may initiate the case by filing a Demand for Arbitration. This form provides for the claimant to give notice to the respondent stating the nature of the claim and the relief being sought. If there is no arbitration clause in the contract, a Submission Agreement may be filed. Under this procedure the parties join in submitting an existing dispute to final and binding arbitration.

Whether the arbitration is filed by Demand or Submission Agreement, the decision of the arbitrator is enforceable by the Texas courts. The award may be entered as a judgment of the court giving the same effect as if the court had issued the decision. Texas architects should note that the Texas General Arbitration Act, which gives enforceability to arbitration agreements, does not require a notice on the front of the document that it contains an arbitration clause, as it used to. It is also no longer necessary to have counsels' signatures affixed to the document for enforceability.

AIA Document A511, "Guide for Supplementary Conditions" provides for the use of mediation in construction-industry disputes. In arbitration, the parties receive a final and binding decision. In mediation, the mediator assists the parties to reach a settlement on their dispute. The mediator has no power to impose a settlement of the parties and acts as a catalyst to bring about a resolution between the disputants. Mediation is gaining wide acceptance throughout the construction industry. It lends itself to a variety of construction-industry disputes, especially those involving monetary claims and those for specific performance. To make mediation work parties should have a positive attitude and a true willingness to settle the matter, and have present executives who have the authority to fashion a settlement.

Firms may also wish to consider using a dual clause in their contracts stating that mediation would be used to first resolve the dispute and, if that fails, arbitration is invoked. Under the AAA's new procedures, a party whose dispute does not settle by mediation is credited the administrative fee toward an arbitration if the arbitration is filed with the AAA within 90 days of the termination of the mediation.

When a dispute is being mediated, the administrator will appoint a mediator whose qualifications meet the requirements of the parties. In an arbitration, the administrator will prepare a list of prospective neutrals for a particular case; the parties cross off names unacceptable to them and number the remaining acceptable names in order of preference. The lists are returned to the administrator within 10 days, as provided for in the CIAR, and a thorough check is made to determine if prospective arbitrators have any bias or conflict of interest. If there is no conflict, the appointment is finalized and the hearing is set. In cases over $200,000, unless the contract provides otherwise, three neutral arbitrators hear the case. Those arbitrators will then conduct a preliminary hearing "to specify the issues to be resolved, to stipulate to uncontested facts, and to consider any other matters that will expedite the arbitration proceedings. Consistent with the expedited nature of arbitration, the arbitrator(s) may, at the preliminary hearing, establish (1) the extent of and schedule for the production of relevant documents and other information, (2) the identification of any witnesses to be called, and (3) a schedule for further hearings to resolve the dispute."

Under the CIAR, an arbitrator has 30 days to render the award from the date that the hearings are closed. The award is then transmitted to the parties by the administrator. Expedited procedures are also available for claims of $50,000 or less. Under those procedures, the award is rendered 14 days from the date of the closing of the hearing.

By employing arbitration and mediation to settle construction-industry disputes, the AIA professional is working for the benefit of all parties. Differences can be resolved quickly and fairly under a comprehensive set of rules and procedures specifically developed for the construction industry, procedures in which the good will of the parties to a dispute and the privacy of the proceeding are preserved. AIA professionals who serve as neutrals in arbitration or mediation proceedings will gain personal and professional satisfaction by guiding parties through an effective and beneficial process of dispute resolution.

Helmut O. Wolff of Dallas is Regional Vice President of the American Arbitration Association.

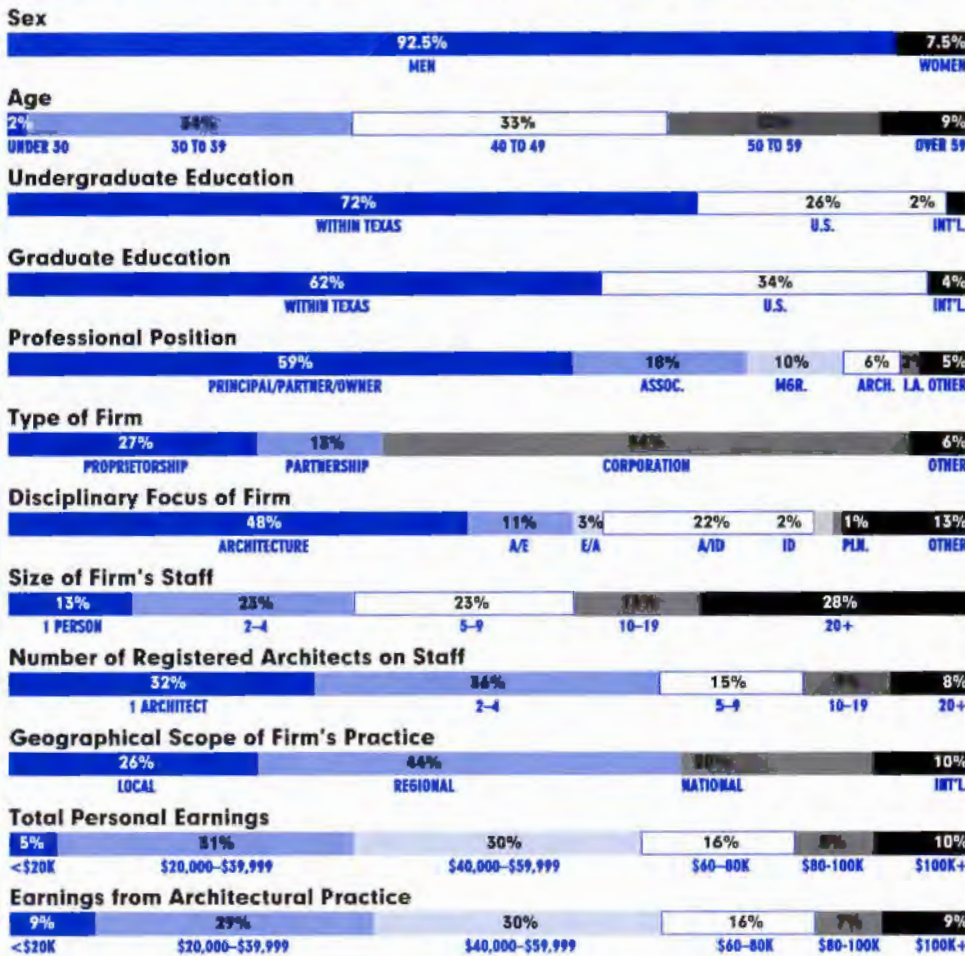

Arbitration, part of AIA contract forms for 100 years, can save time, money, and good will for those in the construction industry.

Third TSA Survey of Texas Architects

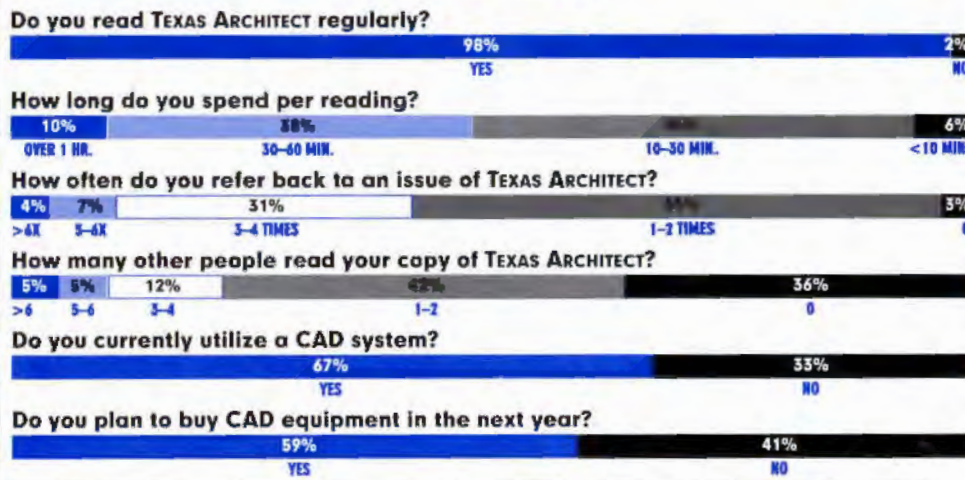

TSA SHOULD FOCUS ON lobbying and government affairs, continuing education, and publications, according to 281 members who responded to a recent survey. They also said awards programs were the least important of TSA's major efforts.

These members offered their opinions to TSA officers and staff last fall through the "TSA Survey of Texas Architects," which was printed in the October 1991 TSA Report. As the third annual survey, this year's edition provided the first clear opportunity to track trends of change in the profession.

Profile of Members Who Responded to the Survey

TEXAS ARCHITECT Demographic Survey

Emerging Trends

STRONG TRENDS among the priorities members give to TSA programs have surfaced. Continuing education remains among the most important programs, its priority level near 3.0. TSA's performance in continuing education, however, rests at 2.0, signifying the largest gap between priority and performance among the 14 major programs. Acting on similar marks last year, TSA officers and staff have been pursuing education opportunities such as seminars on the Americans with Disabilities Act and workshops on energy efficiency. TSA is seeking further educational venues for members, says TSA Executive Vice President David Lancaster.

Legislative activity was the highest-rated priority, followed by political-action activity, continuing education, intern development, and Texas Architect. Texas Architect for the second year received highest marks for performance, followed by other publications and legislative and political-action efforts.

In sheer demographics, the profile of the average member is becoming harder to stereotype. More are women, more are under 40, and more have been educated outside Texas. Fewer members work for corporations now; instead they are working for sole proprietorships and, to some extent, partnerships. The '90s may be ushering in a return to smaller firms. In fact, over one half of the respondents' firms had four or fewer architects on staff. Regional practice has risen slightly, too. And last, in a disappointing result of nationwide economic troubles, members are actually making less money than they were when surveyed in 1990.

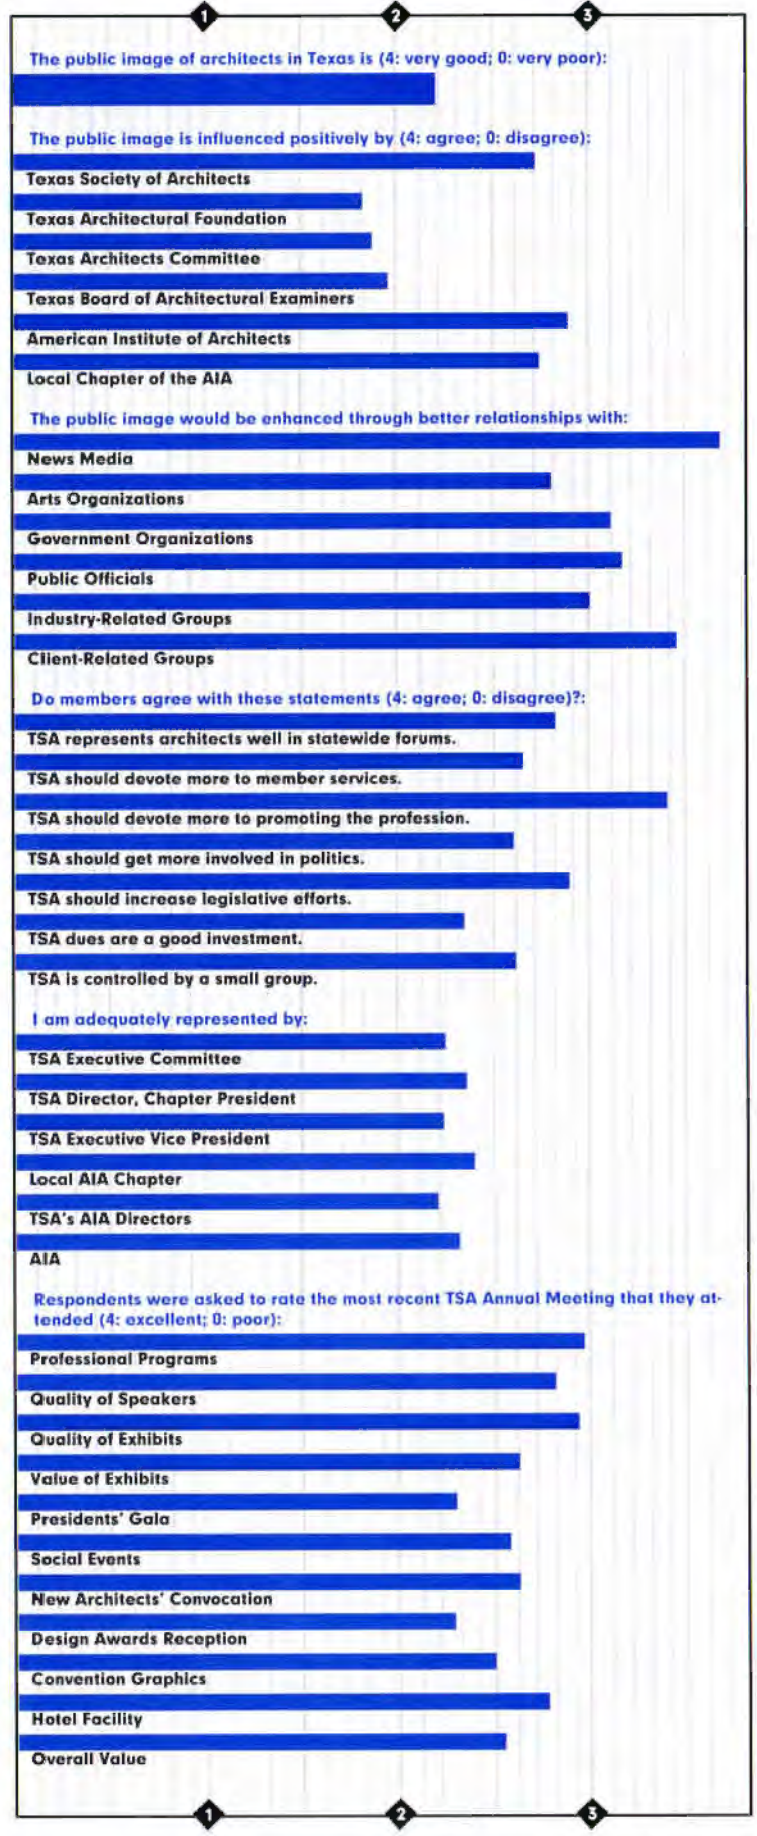

Images and Perceptions

PERCEPTIONS ABOUT THE IMAGE of the architectural profession changed little. Members feel slightly worse about architecture's public image this year, but they still rate it fair to good. All three levels of AIA are still given highest scores for promoting this image. Members say image would improve most by TSA's promoting the profession more aggressively to the news media and client-related groups.

Annual Meeting and TEXAS ARCHITECT

FOCUSING ON TSA's two largest programs, members said professional programs were still the best part of the Annual Meeting. Ratings held steady for other components of the convention, except for drops in the quality of speakers, the Presidents' Gala, and the New Architects' Convocation. Texas Architect's approval surged higher. A full 98 percent of respondents read the magazine regularly; they spend more time (36 minutes per reading); they refer back to it more (2.6 times on average); and more people read each member's copy (1.71 additional people). In a note of optimism, too, the number of members planning to buy CAD equipment in the next year edged up six percent. Ray Don Tilley

Thinking about Architecture as a Profession

IT HAS BEEN TOUGH handling the changes our profession has gone through over the last five or six years: the increasing unemployment, the erosion of building power by developers and public clients, the traditionally low salaries, the long hours, and the lack of professional self-esteem. Sometimes I wonder if the '90s will break the architectural profession's back. And I sometimes wonder why we still choose to be architects.

The problems of today originated in the abundance of the 1960s, which brought unprecedented growth in both population and the economy. The supply of money and the need for commercial and institutional facilities were at a peak. Firms and university programs multiplied (there are currently 96 accredited architectural programs, twice as many as 30 years ago) to keep pace with demand and a growing population.

But suddenly the 1970s oil crisis collapsed the market, with severe repercussions in the architectural profession. Architects became increasingly diversified in terms of project types, specializing in their practices and dividing their staffs into specialties (design, production, management, etc.) to streamline operations. Some firms even developed subspecialties to speed up the design process, like programming and space and facilities planning (or what has now become known as interior architecture). Firms also began to market and work regionally and nationally to weather the cycles of the economy. And the numbers of new firms, split off from older firms or created from their collapse, increased.

Then the late-'70s boom began, and the architectural profession entered a new era of prosperity. Buildings were designed and built faster than had ever been imagined. Firms that had been holding on by a thread suddenly found themselves consumed with work. Architecture became the frontrunner of the economy. Not only that, architects became celebrities, with Philip Johnson on the cover of Time and Michael Graves designing dishes and promoting shoes.

But, at the same time, fundamental aspects of our profession began eroding. Some firms began specializing in conceptual design, others in construction documents, management, planning, and so on. This erosion of the traditional image of the architect had begun in the mid-'30s, but the 1970s recession and the radical forces it unleashed forced firms into camps that would be hard to leave. As markets expanded, project-delivery deadlines tightened. To meet the demand, firms expanded at unbelievable rates, soaking up the thousands of architectural graduates leaving the schools each year.

Then the bust of the mid-'80s came. This time, the culprit was much bigger than oil—it was a financial infrastructure bursting at the seams. Banks failed. Saving and loans were declared insolvent. Worst of all, by this time we had managed to design and build enough space to last us well past the end of this century.

As we once again face a fragmented and disoriented economy, architects are having to scramble to find their niche in the marketplace. In the next five years, it is predicted, the volume of work available will be barely 20 percent of what it was in the 1980s. The competition for work is becoming increasingly stressful.

If there is a lesson to be learned from all of this, it probably has to do with how quickly we will be expected to work in the future. As money becomes harder to find, our clients can no longer afford to sit through a year-long design program. Thus, speed will overtake contemplation. In addition, with the creation of new markets, whether they are smaller project types or complete new disciplines, firms will have to become more diverse and flexible—able to weather a variety of market fluctuations. We will also have to think about practicing in international arenas, of scaling our practices down enough to survive in a regional mode. Last, but not least, job and employee longevity will become a fundamental crisis in the management of firms of all sizes. And every firm will be faced with how to provide some sense of security and growth for a generation of architects who have become consumed with career advancement—a sad but true characteristic of the baby boomers.

Even in the midst of all this crisis there are still those individuals who are starting their own firms—the young rebels who want to do things differently. And there are still many who feel more comfortable working in smaller firms. The only unknown piece of this complex puzzle is how the universities will serve this rapidly and constantly changing profession as it tries to respond to the economy and society. By far the most crucial impact the recession of the early '90s will have on the way we practice is in the area of fees. Currently firms are having to reduce their fee structures to stay competitive, and one lesson we still remember is that fees drop at a faster rate than they rise.

After all of this, what motivates one to choose architecture as a profession? How can we share with all the students and professionals this history and not become depressed or even worse despondent about our profession's future? Or is there a future?

So the question stands, Why do we still choose to become architects? Speaking personally, I became an architect because I like problem-solving and the opportunity to see things built into the very fabric of our society. Compared to other professions, architecture provides a unique opportunity for self-realization and the chance to make an impact on our built environment. Other individuals choose to become architects for the challenge and the creative aspect the profession generates, and there are some who study architecture for the glory. Regardless of what motivates this person or that to study architecture, we need to be aware of the systematic erosion of the architect's role in the building community. As long as this condition exists, architecture as a profession will be held hostage to the whims of developers, institutional owners, legislatures, the economic infrastructure, the legal system, and our own consuming desire for self-realization.

The creation within the practice of architecture resembles the pains and pleasures of childbirth. This is the only profession where the creative nature of the process goes through a romance stage, followed by the sharing of mutual goals between two individuals, the conception of the idea, the gestation process followed by the long hours of labor and nurturing to see the product delivered into a society for its assimilation. Like a child as it matures one can see its goodness as well as its failures, and all it takes is one look at your child to realize the importance of your contribution.

All of these ruminations started from a question I was asked at a recent gathering: Why did I decide to become an architect? In the traditional marketing mode, I said, "The architect is the single professional equipped, educated, trained, and experienced to guide the public through the entire building process." To which my interlocutor responded, "With such a burden, how much can you expect to make after graduating from college?"

As a good Catholic, I replied, "I did not become an architect for the money—it was for the suffering!"

GREAT ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Great architectural accomplishments are never forgotten. That's why great architects have been specifying Featherlite's Texas Quarries division's natural limestone for over sixty years. Cordova Cream, Cordova Shell, and Lueders limestone has been the natural selection in countless projects throughout Texas since 1929. Texas Quarries provides superlative craftsmanship and a variety of styles and textures as expansive as the architect's imagination.

Featherlite now offers StoneWall, a landscape-retaining-wall system that goes up more easily and quickly than any other product on the market today. StoneWall provides a natural fit in any landscape while allowing complete design flexibility. More economical than poured concrete and superior to wood, its lightweight, easy-to-handle units make for mortarless, simple and fast installation.

The newest face in masonry is Featherlite's BURNISHED MASONRY UNITS. For a durable, inexpensive and easy-to-install finish with the beautiful look of classic stone, architects can now specify Burnished Masonry Units for both interior and exterior surfaces. Manufactured in Texas by Featherlite and available throughout the Southwest, the units have an exposed aggregate finish available in pink granite, terrazzo, cream limestone, brown, saddle tan, and dark-gray onyx.
