

Talk about design . . .

All around Texas there's a new look, and the credit belongs to the architect. Everywhere, structures are becoming more functional and at the same time more attractive. As designs become more sophisticated, better building materials are required. Black-Brollier will continue to assist architects by supplying the quality products that are demanded.

THE TEXAS ARCHITECT

VOLUME 15 / NOVEMBER 1965 / NUMBER 11

Nestled in the foothills of the Colorado River and spreading to the rolling flatlands to the east, the city of Austin is blessed with perhaps the most beautiful natural setting in all the State. Year after year thousands of tourists and convention-goers have come to Austin to be charmed by its sense of history and to delight in its hills and trees and lakes.

This month, hundreds of architects will gather in the City of the Violet Crown. They will find the Crown tarnished, jewels missing.

For Austin suffers the same malady that afflicts every city in Texas.

Stores along broad Congress Avenue gape empty; shopping crowds have dwindled, but the streets are clogged with cars that have no place to park. The handsome old buildings that were built as the Republic grew are coming down. The charm is beginning to fade. The proud silhouette of the Capitol now competes with looming neighbors, gigantic billboards, flashing neon signs. The trees that were once the city's hallmark are disappearing. Famous landmarks like Mount Bonnell, with its unrivalled view of the lakes and hills is abandoned, unnecessarily. The creeks and beauty spots about the city seem too costly to keep.

Soon, the computerized surgery of the highway engineer will commence its indiscriminate slashing through the heart of the city to make way for those multi-level symbols of progress, The Freeways, to dwarf man and buildings and rip apart the fabric of the city.

The blue-bonnet plains are being covered with the monotony of inane little houses that belittle the human spirit. The covered hills become heaps of pretension.

This proud and beautiful city is being abandoned to greed and ignorance and indifference. Soon it will be just another city.

ST. STEPHEN METHODIST CHURCH, MESQUITE

PRATT, BOX & HENDERSON

ARCHITECTS PLANNERS

ST. STEPHENS

The site plan and rendering showing the relationship of all units in the completed project.

ST. STEPHENS

Added emphasis in the community was given the church by placing it on an eight-foot earth berm. The large number of cars are screened by depressing the parking area.

The Building Committee's problem was to provide worship, educational and administrative facilities for a one-year old suburban congregation whose ultimate membership would not exceed 1500 persons.

The congregation had undertaken to re-evaluate Methodist theology and worship forms in a search for a more contemporary expression. The architects were charged to give these ideas form: a suspended cross was to be the dominant symbol in the sanctuary, beneath which would stand equally the pulpit, baptismal font, and the Lord's Table—the symbols of calling, healing, and feeding; the congregation and the choir were to be united into one worshiping group; the fellowship hall was to act as a temporary sanctuary and embody as much of the character of the future sanctuary as possible; the classrooms were to have a character distinctly different from their secular equivalent; and the building should reflect church traditions in a contemporary architectural form.

Lighting is handled with sensitivity as striking contrasts accentuate the varying massive structure.

Walking through the spaces one experiences intrigue, surprise and delight as the dynamic forms unfold.

ST. STEPHENS

The architectural solution developed directly from the theological concepts of the congregation. The prime generator of the future sanctuary form will be the relationship between the congregation and the cross suspended above the communion table, the pulpit, and baptismal font.

The congregation is grouped around the communion table and pulpit with the circle closed, symbolically, by the seats of the "apse" screen. A "rose window" skylight will illuminate the chancel area. The choir will be placed in the circle as members of the worshipping congregation but also against the base of the tower to reinforce sound. The entrance to the sanctuary was placed behind the apse screen to create a confrontation with the cross at the moment of entry and to give the congregation a full view of processions as they approach the chancel circle.

The font has been placed at the entrance into the sanctuary to give it its traditional symbol of entry into the church.

A courtyard is formed by the educational unit, administrative facilities, and the fellowship hall to create a sense of peace and preparation for entering the sanctuary. The entrance to the courtyard is tangential rather than axial to establish an organization inducing motion.

ST. STEPHENS

The form of the solution and the necessity of keeping construction costs down directed attention to Archilithics, a new material which was sprayed $\frac{1}{4}$ " thick on both sides of concrete block laid without mortar by common labor. This skin has strong tensile and bonding properties and is waterproof and fire-proof. The material has a portland cement base with special admixtures and glass fiber reinforcing.

The homogenous feeling of the walls, ceiling and floor form an ideal background for the chancel furnishings which, with delicate detailing and skilful craftsmanship, present the Methodist theology in bold concise statements.

FOUNDER'S BRICK*

Trademark of Crowe-Gulde Cement Co. Patent applied for.

The Founder's collection of brick marks another major innovation at Crowe-Gulde. The founders of Crowe-Gulde have, for many years, been searching for a high quality brick* that would be pleasing to the eye and yet be reasonable in cost. The Founder's line became possible only after the new Crowe-Gulde plant was built so that high pressure curing could be used to make this brick stronger and more durable than clay brick.

These three panels and the photos on the fold out are only a representation of the infinite choice of colors available in Founder's Brick. Countless combinations can be formed by combining and mixing or leaving out a color.

TOP, TASCOSA TINGE is the perfect blend for a ranch style home, or the style of your choice, with the rugged look of Old Tascosa to the grace of a pacing stallion.

CENTER, CANADIAN RANGE, so named because it has all the striking deep colors of the sprawling cattle ranges along the Canadian River.

BOTTOM, A GLIMPSE OF ASPEN TONES draws the imagination to the pallet of a Taos artist painting the turning Aspen's in the fall.

These beautiful blends are carried in stock, for immediate delivery. You may want to change the hue by leaving out certain colors. With a few days notice, almost anything is possible.

What does GENUINE CONCRETE BRICK provide that clay facings lack? The answer is enduring quality. Ask for the brochure "Why Use Concrete Brick" it will give you the answer in the form of a simple comparative table in positive terms.

CONCRETE BRICK IS BEST! INSIST ON IT!

SALT SHAKER

(Almost!) Yes, this Mosher-built Desalting Pressure Vessel could be likened to a salt shaker, except it takes the salt out . . . instead of putting it on.

10 feet in diameter, 90 feet long, it's on the way to a refinery in South America. Other vessels from the Mosher Plate Division are used the world over in the Chemical and Petro Chemical industries.

Whether you need vessels, fractionators or other fabricated plate work . . . call Mosher!

New ideas in concrete bring distinctive beauty to building

Modern patterns in concrete masonry provide interesting designs to create decorative screen walls in commercial buildings and homes

Once noted mainly for its utility, concrete masonry has become a new and exciting material. The exceptional talent for beauty of concrete in all its forms is capturing the imagination of architects everywhere. Results are apparent not only in decorative sun screens, but in gracefully contoured shell roofs, in wall panels of every shape, color and texture.

New ideas and modern distribution methods are increasing concrete's practicality as well. Builders get concrete when they want it, in the form they want it—ready mixed en route, cast in place, or as pre-designed and fabricated units for on-site assembly. Contributing to important advances in concrete are the research, engineering and educational services of PCA, sponsored by manufacturers of portland cement.

The International City's new 42,000 sq. ft. Police garage will be built of prestressed concrete, utilizing single "T" units which will span approximately 58 feet. Parking levels will be clear of obstruction, assuring maximum safety and allowing maximum use of space. Single "T" stems and columns eliminate supporting beams along exterior walls.

Use of prestressed concrete will reduce construction costs. No shoring will be required; construction time will be less. Beauty, durability, and economy make prestressed concrete construction the logical choice for commercial and industrial building.

MARBLECRETE PLUS...

Marblecrete plus imagination . . . that's your formula for a distinctive building. Study the outstanding example shown here: the new St. John Bosco Church in Chicago.

The vertically tapered panels of the building's facade are of Marblecrete. Colorado Milky Quartz (#1 and #2 sizes) was gunned into a $\frac{3}{8}$ " bedding coat of Trinity White Portland Cement. There are 84 of these panels—each 18 feet tall. To avoid joint lines, three crews of two men each worked simultaneously—at three different levels. The result is a uniform distribution of color and texture that enhances the entire architectural effect.
