

Issue		Deadlines
January/February
Feature: Image	Form-driven architecture has led to some of the most iconic buildings of our times. But as architects are asked to respond to deeper community needs, the role of aesthetics is increasingly called into question. Has iconic architecture seen its heyday, or is there still a place for “building as object” in contemporary practice? In this issue, we explore the role of image in architecture today.	Editorial Sep. 30, 2022	Ads Close Nov. 22, 2022
Portfolio: Mixed-Use/Office			Ads Due Nov. 29, 2022
Products: Surfaces
March/April
Feature: Placekeeping	The term “placemaking” was coined in the 1960s as a call to center the needs of people in the design of cities. “Placekeeping” has risen in its wake, expanding this idea to include participatory community engagement and preservation of existing public spaces and cultures. Is it possible to develop in an “authentic” way that prioritizes community preservation? In this issue, we explore how placekeeping can inform the development of public space.	Editorial Nov. 17, 2022	Ads Close Feb 2, 2023
Portfolio: Preservation/Adaptive Reuse			Ads Due Feb. 9, 2023
Products: Lighting
May/June
Feature: Networks	The boundaries between architectural and digital design, as well as related disciplines like wayfinding and branding, are quickly dissolving as architects are asked to design for virtual and augmented environments. How does this impact architectural education and the profession writ large? And how does it change our understanding and navigation of space on a neural level? In this issue, we delve into the forces that shape “phygital” design.	Editorial Jan. 19, 2023	Ads Close Mar. 30, 2023
Portfolio: Integrated Design			Ads Due Apr. 6, 2023
Products: Windows & Doors
July/August
Feature: Public/Private	From public-private development partnerships to management of wildlife and public lands, the impact of architecture can be seen and felt well beyond the boundaries of a singular building. What role should architects play in public life, and how can the profession contribute to the health, safety, and well-being of greater society? In this issue we explore the complex, and often contentious, relationship between the public and private realms.	Editorial Mar. 16, 2023	Ads Close Jun. 1, 2023
Portfolio: Civic/Institutional			Ads Due Jun. 8, 2023
Products: Landscaping
September/October
Feature: Design Awards	In this issue we showcase the winners of the Texas Society of Architects’ 2023 Design Awards program. These projects, selected by a jury of award-winning architects, are diverse in type and exhibit the range and excellence of the state’s architectural program. 10% Advertising Discount for 2023 Texas Architects Exhibitors!	Editorial May 15, 2023	Ads Close Jul. 27, 2023
Products: Contract Interiors			Ads Due Aug. 3, 2023
Special Insert: Design Expo Exhibitor Guide
November/December
Feature: Migration	Texas cities have been among the country’s fastest growing urban hotspots in recent years. Large corporations, too, have found the state to be a desirable destination. What are the benefits and pitfalls of this extraordinary economic boom? And how is the state expected to grow and adapt to an influx of new people and new money? In this issue, we examine movement into, within, and out of our state’s borders.	Editorial Jul. 19, 2023	Ads Close Sep. 29, 2023
Portfolio: Alternative Residential Typologies			Ads Due Oct. 6, 2023
Products: Residential

Ad reservation deadlines subject to change.